PIKABÚ SERIE

¡PIU! (Tweet!), ¡CRACK! (Crack!) and ¡PUF! (Poop!) are the titles of a non-fiction book series that use poetry and humor. With their small, quadratic format, made of sturdy cardboard, and featuring a simple, robust pop-up mechanism, these books are very well-suited to be manipulated repeatedly, to be opened, read, and looked at.

Through verses as riddles, readers must discover to which bird, animal, or insect the feathers, eggs or poop belong. Every one gets two double-spreads and, charmingly, it is only after turning to the second page that we learn which animal is behind the feather, egg or poop just poetically described. The cheerful, funny pictures contribute to the playful, relaxed character of this book that introduces poetry -through riddles- to first readers. The final two pages briefly list additional information about each of the animals featured.

Mi cara:

siempre está despierta.
¿Quién soy?

PIKABÚ apps

¡PIU!, ¡PUF! and ¡CRACK! are three entertaining, didactical, and bilingual apps based on the Pikabú serie about the fascinating topic of feathers, poops and eggs in the animal world. Intended for children 2 to 7 years old, they have intuitive and fun functions, that will guide the reader/ user around the app. When entering, you can set the language (Spanish or English) to play. An illustrated map, accompanied by music, invites the children to sweep between the different feathers/excretions or eggs in order to choose in which universe to enter. Each hint is an entertaining animation and by touching it, a superior row of buttons is being completed. And once the seventh hint is cleared, music sounds and the animal, bird or insect appears with extended scientific information.

Also, the apps offer its users the possibility to record the memorized verses, thus enabling the child to take the leading role and, above all, to personalize it. With great esthetical and musical content, these apps promote admiration of nature in a calm and unhurried interface.
